Southern Arcana, Book Four Kat Gabriels empathic ability is no gift--its a deadly weapon. Shes used it once, in a bloody confrontation to save Andrew Callaghans life. Now she bears the inescapable weight of those deaths--and aches for the loss of the easy relationship she once shared with Andrew. Unleashing her power may have saved his life, but it couldnt save his humanity. Or their friendship. Since the attack that turned him into a werewolf, Andrews sole focus has been on making himself stronger. Pushing Kat away hurt like hell, but she doesnt need a friend. She needs a protector strong enough to shield her from the supernatural world that forced her to kill. Strong enough to resist their volatile connection. As Kats quest to understand the violent legacy of her past leads her into the darkest underbelly of the psychic world, Andrew is at her side. Yet every step forward rips open old emotional wounds and shakes his control. Where theyre headed, distractions of any kind can be fatal--especially when the greatest threat they pose is to each other.
