Romantic Suspense at its Best! If I die, will you go to my funeral? asked Katherine. Will there be food there? answered Scott. They say the best foundation for a relationship is friendship. If that's true, then Scott Mitchell and Katherine O'Brien are destined to fall madly in love and live happily ever after. But first, someone needs to tell them. Finding themselves firmly entrenched in the friend zone has them both secretly asking the age-old questions, Can a friendship survive sex? Can a man and woman really be friends and lovers? And if those questions aren't drama enough, Don't look back, just keep walking! Shortly after meeting Scott, Katherine stumbles upon a killer as he's disposing of his victim. She becomes a woman with a target on her back. Katherine got away from the killer that night, but he's determined to find her, and not just because of what she saw but because of something she found. Something priceless is hidden in the blue jeans that now grace her closet floor. A perfect blend of romance, mystery, and humor. Mocha, Moonlight, and Murder will have you laughing, and keep you guessing until the very end.
