

Meet Jase Spencer. He's just your everyday kinda guy, a hard-partying, hard-living professional hockey player. Nothin' special. Good-looking and ripped, the man has moves, on and off the ice. But, he's also jaded and alone, and tired of living out of suitcases. For as long as he can remember, hockey has ruled his life. He's chased pucks across more than a dozen countries, and had his pick of women in any town he visits. Then he met HER. And now, he's about to turn his life upside down because of HER. Because he can't get the one night of passion he shared with a smokin' hot biker babe out of his head. Unfortunately, DeeDee wasn't interested in anything long term, and she's gone before he's ready. Life becomes complicated and difficult when Jase is traded to another team, and as he tries to settle in his new hometown, everything seems to conspire against him, determined to go wrong. Dancing around their mutual attraction, one day he and DeeDee find themselves face-to-face and body-to-body, but will they be able to set aside their past pain and focus on the future they could make together? Can he make her reconsider her relationship fears and trust him? Jase is on a mission to show her what they have together is worth fighting for, to convince her to take a chance on him. His attempts will bring him squarely into the path of a motorcycle club, earning him the attention of Mason, president of the Rebel Wayfarers MC. Jase says, "Bring it on."
