

Black Heat (The Boomtown Boys Book 2)

BLACK HEAT Ruby Laska presents a sweet contemporary romance novel about a bad boy turned lawman, and the desperate thief who'll do anything to save her only friend. Book 2 in the Boomtown Boys series: the women who live and love in the oil town of Conway, North Dakota are beautiful, tough, and passionate enough to keep their men warm through the long northern winters. Calvin Dixon grew up tough. After spending much of his adolescence on the streets, he vows to turn his life around, and enrolls in the police academy. Despite high marks, the top cops in town remember Cal's past, and there's no place for him on the force. In North Dakota, he gets a second chance. He's weeks away from earning his badge when he catches a beautiful, desperate young woman breaking into the abandoned house next to the bunkhouse where he lives - and helps her escape. Roan Brackens is searching for treasure hidden in the old house that was once her home: without a windfall, she'll lose the one thing she loves. As Cal tries to help, risking the job he moved across the country for, their growing attraction threatens to doom both their dreams for the future.

THE BOOMTOWN BOYS SERIES: When the recession strikes Red Fork, Arkansas, leaving five friends desperate for a new start, they head for Conway, North Dakota to make their fortunes in the oil boom. Matthew, Calvin, Chase, Jimmy, and Zane are no strangers to hard work, but life on an oil rig means long shifts, difficult conditions and constant danger, and total commitment to bringing the black gold up from deep below the earth's surface. (contemporary romance, heroes, alpha males, wild west, sweet romance, bad boys, falling in love, women's fiction, love story)

Authors Note: All books can easily be read as stand-alone stories.
