

Close to Home (It Started in Texas)

Shes his best friends little sister. Hes her fantasy quest. Romance author Liz Lee delivers an emotional read with Close to Home: For eighteen years, home was a point on the map for Donovan Nelson. But he found his place on the front lines as a reporter in the Middle East covering soldiers, modern day heroes, for the folks back home in the USA. Now hes back, in Caldale, Texas, and Kacie Jo Jenkins doesnt plan on letting the opportunity pass. Her goal: the seduction of Donovan Nelson. What no one knows is Donovan is back in town because he suffers from PTSD, and hes been ordered home for rest and relaxation. But Donovan understands rest is the last thing he needs. What he needs is oblivion in the arms of a woman who understands the sanctity of the one night stand. Not Kacie Jo. Not romance. Still Donovan finds himself drawn to Kacie Jos innocence. Hes flattered by her attention. He never plans on ending up in her bed, but when he does, he knows hes one step closer to cutting ties to the place he spent a decade running from. Will Donovan face his fears and his pain and find solace in love? Will Kacie Jo learn to love the man Donovan is and not the image she built him up to be? Or will they both suffer the consequences of one night of passion alone? Close to Home is the first of the It Started in Texas series by contemporary romance author Liz Lee.
