

Daydream Believer (The Firsts Book 10)

Zach had been searching for an adventure worthy of a vampire. In the harsh beauty of a Siberian lake, he found it. An ancient burial site brings mystery and danger to vampires who have walked this world for over a thousand years. As he surveys the stunning icy landscape and considers his next adventure, the woman he'd left two years ago, a magnificent older vampire, has finally decided that she loves him...hasn't she? She shows up, aggressive, sexy, jealous of the beautiful vampire he's traveled to Siberia with, to stake her claim. All he needs to know now is, will she run again when he finally accepts her love. Dez has been searching for the man who'd walked away after she declared that she would never love him. In a frozen land, she finally finds him to let him know that she'd lied. It's just that it's so hard to actually admit it, to give away her heart so that it can be stomped on. What else could she expect? But after two years of loneliness, she decides that she doesn't want to live these endless years without him. He makes her laugh, he's a spectacular lover, and most of all, she knows that he loves her, no matter how tough that is to do. When she finds that he's in Siberia, she travels from her home in South America to let him know that she can finally admit what he's told her all along...she loves him and doesn't want to live without him. Walking into a little club in the isolated ice-box on Lake Baikal, she finds he's traveled there with a gorgeous vampire. Dez has never played nice when she wanted something, but this...Zach...was she too late? Dez and Zach's story, started in Book 1, continues 10 volumes later. When you're immortal, how easy is it to fall in love forever?
