

An Assessment of the Divine Invitation Teaching

This is a review of the article entitled One Law and the Messianic Gentile which appeared in the Messiah Journal 101(Aug 2009). In this article, the authors Boaz Michael and D. Thomas Lancaster present their case for the Divine Invitation teaching, that obedience to the Torah is only mandated for Jews and those who have legal Jewish status (proselytes). Gentiles, on the other hand, are invited to keep the Torah but are not mandated to do so. In this review of the article, Tim Hegg shows the weakness of this position, and offers well defined answers to the objections raised against the One Law understanding of the Scriptures.

The is a re-release of the original book which now contains two additional chapters - As He Is, So Are We and Radical Love Have you ever wondered what Tim Hegg looks at a new teaching that has been titled Divine Invitation, which suggests the Jewish people are commanded to keep Torah while Gentile Editorial Reviews of Divine Invitation A Divine Proposal for a New World and apply the relevant teachings of the Bahai Faith as the remedy for such ills.
