

The Lily Brand

Troy Sacheverell, fifth Earl of Ravenhurst, was captured in France. Hed gone to fight Napoleon, but what he found was much more sinister. Dragged from prison to an old French manor on the outskirts of civilization, he was purchased by a rich and twisted widow. But more dangerous still was the young beauty who claimed him as hers. Lillian wished to flee Camille, her stepmother, but none escaped the Black Widows web. And on her nineteenth birthday, Lillian became Camilles heir. Her gift was a plaything: a man to end her naivete, a man perfect in all ways but his stolen freedom. Reluctantly Lillian did as she was told, marked that beautiful flesh and branded it with the flower of her name. As she did, she saw there was no place to run. No matter if she should flee, no matter where she might go, she and this man were prisoners of passion, inextricably joined by THE LILY BRAND.
